

Capt. Fredericks on a Pumpkin.

A prosperity sign from Lankershim.

The pumpkin was grown by Fred Weddington, and when it was young the ranchman scratched on its skin with a bradawl the words "John D. Fredericks for Governor," together with a rough sketch of the Captain. These letters and lines now appear raised above the surrounding skin. The pumpkin is twenty inches in diameter and weighs eighty pounds. The girl is Miss Bess Bromley of Los Angeles. Fredericks's head on a pumpkin—I can see what the Record and Express would do to that, huh?
